Johnson, Erhard Talk Of Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson met with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard on Friday amid a less-than-crisis atmosphere over Moscow's signing of a new treaty with Communist East Germany.

Scranton Charges Into Presidential Fray

Lodge Supporters Turn To Scranton

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—The national chairman of the campaign committee of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge threw his organization's support Friday behind the 11th hour bid of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton for the Republican presidential nomination.

Maxwell M. Rabb, Lodge's representative, said in a statement:

"We are proud to support Scranton and we know he will be victorious in July and then again in November."

Rabb made his announcement after conferring for an hour with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He held a news conference on the lawn outside Eisenhower's office here.

Rabb said he did not confer with Lodge on the endorsement but quickly added, "I'm sure he would approve."

Rabb, a New Yorker, said he met with Eisenhower to advise the general of his intentions.

"Gen. Eisenhower made it very clear that what he favored was a wide open convention," Rabb said.

Earlier, Robert Mullen, national co-ordinator of the committee to draft Lodge for the nomination, said in Washington he would urge Lodge supporters to work for Scranton's nomination.

STROUDSBURG — Amid the popping of flash cameras operated by proud parents, 179 maroon-clad seniors bid fond adieu to Stroud Union High School last night during the school's 73rd annual graduation exercises.

More than 1,000 guests witnessed the ceremonies in the school's gymnasium where tears were brought to graduates' eyes by the glee club's rendition of "Halls of Ivy."

The night's principal speaker, Ivan Boxell of Danville, described as a world traveler and newspaper news analyst, impressed upon the audience freedom's struggle against communism can only be won by "people to people diplomacy."

Boxell cautioned the graduates that "foreign aid can be given until it pours out our ears, but it will have little effect unless it is accompanied by an attitude of understanding."

Poverty Wins

He admitted his generation has lost the battle against poverty and winning the destitute of the uncommitted nation rests in the hands of the classes of '64 across the nation.

William F. Grimm gave the salutatory address and warned new means will have to be devised to cope with the population explosion.

Grimm said the negative approach to the problem is to condone birth control. He said the positive approach is to seek new sources of food supply.

The class valedictorian, Linda Sue Kosterna said it is misleading to describe high school as the "best time of our lives."

She told the class the fruits of their lives lie ahead both "mentally . . . and spiritually."

William Thomas Rosemond Jr., class president, pointed out to parents that they only realize their children are "on certain occasions" . . . such as graduation time.

Rosemond recited a poem by Rudyard Kipling giving the class a formula for leading a good life.

Awards

A highlight of the night was the presentation of awards by Earl Groner, superintendent of schools, to the following students:

Bruce Reish — The 15th annual $1,500 Robert Kintner award made in memory of Kintner's mother, Kintner is president of the National Broadcasting Co.

John T. Krause — The Parent Teacher Assn. award for citizenship and mental and cultural growth.

Glenn R. Bishong Jr. — The Varsity "S" award for the outstanding athlete.

Linda Sue Kosterna — The class of 1967 valedictorian award.

William Grimm — The Kiwanis Club of Stroudsburg citation.

Parke W. Kunkle Jr. — Eminent Award for all-round general excellence.

Alfred W. Munson, high school principal, introduced the graduates and Groner presented diplomas.

The car was driven by Thomas E. Strunk Jr., 18, of Henryville Rd. 1, who was coming over a hill when the accident occurred, police said.

S. U. Geography Teacher Killed On Interstate 80

EAST STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Rosemary Mekeel Schwartz, 23, of 900 Main St., Stroudsburg, died last night from injuries received when her compact car crashed head-on into a tractor trailer.

Mrs. Schwartz was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where emergency treatment was given. She died at 9:30 p.m.

John C. F. Felker, Monroe County coroner, said last night the cause of death has not been established and an autopsy would be performed today at 10 a.m.

The car was in the air and coming at me when I first saw it. I thought it would come right through the windshield of my cab," Labukas said.

Mrs. Schwartz was a teacher in Stroud Union Junior-Senior High School. She taught seventh grade geography and social studies.

State Police gave no estimate of damage to the tractor-trailer but said the Schwartz vehicle was a total loss.

Damage to the tractor was the left front bumper, fender, and the gasoline tank. The trailer showed some damage to its front left corner.

Mrs. Schwartz was born in Forest Hills, Pa., a daughter of Mrs. Rose E. Mekeel of East Stroudsburg, and the late Robert Paxson Mekeel.

She was a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg State College.

In addition to her mother she is survived by her husband, Ronald C. Schwartz of East Stroudsburg.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home.

What Makes Billy Run?

WASHINGTON (AP)—What pulled the trigger for Gov. William W. Scranton?

"It was a combination of a lot of things," said Rep. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., a leading congressional backer who talked to the Pennsylvania governor by telephone Friday night about his decision to go all out for the Republican presidential nomination.

"After the fiasco at the governors' conference in Cleveland last week with the adverse criticism, the lack of support at the conference for a moderate position, and his own philosophical differences with Sen. Barry Goldwater," Schweiker said, "All these combined to get him going."

State Police from Stroudsburg substitution who received the call at 8:31 p.m. said Mrs. Schwartz was traveling east on Interstate Rt. 80 at Minisink Hills when her car crossed the cement divider and crashed into a Richards Freight Lines truck operated by Albert Labukas, 34, of Stroudsburg.

Labukas was traveling west on Interstate Rt. 80.

"The car was in the air and coming at me when I first saw it. I thought it would come right through the windshield of my cab," Labukas said.

"I stand before you today to challenge that view."

"Our party is not about to forget that the first great act of a great American president is get elected."

"Nor are we about to forget our candidates for the United States Senate, for the House of Representatives, for the governor's chairs, for the state legislatures and for the local offices."

"I say that the true spirit of the Republican party today stands equally dedicated to preserving this nation from the dry rot of phony liberalism or the slow death of blind reaction."

"I say that the time has come for us to stand fast against both those who would compromise us into slavery and those who would lead us there in a burst of irresponsible flames."

"Let us be done with the fear of our system spread by the bumbling promoters of boom or bust in the opposition party."

"And let us be done with the fear spread by the small-minded in our own party who hint that America has not enough prosperity to go around."

"Let us be done with the fear of the black man and the fear of the white man . . . and let us have the courage to say that there are those in each party who wish to trade on both."

"Let us be done with the irrational fear that man has too much liberty, and let us build an even greater nation on the theory that America is blessed by God to stand forever as the guardian of freedom."

"We have waited dangerously long to call upon our party's conscience, upon its wisdom, upon its will."

"For too many months we have been slow to act, but fast to say that it could not happen to us . . . not to our party."

"I believe that as member of a party more than 100 years old we have no right to sell out to the modern expediencies of the easy answer, the fast draw, the quick solution."

Edward Froderman Heads Scientist

BOSTON, Mass. — A call to use "spiritual power" to help solve the world's "thorny problems of human relations and race inequalities" greeted Christian Scientists at their annual meeting in Boston, Mass.

A message from The Christian Science Board of Directors reaffirmed the church's conviction that the mightiest force on earth is "the still small voice of universal Christian idealism."

The election of Edward Froderman as the new president of the church for the coming year was announced.

His address to the gathering described "spiritual perception" as a necessity for meeting today's great human responsibilities.

"This unparalleled hour is presenting an opportunity for each of us," he said. It has become essential to "make use of our God-given spiritual power."

Froderman is a former vice-president of a Chicago bank, resigning in 1949 to enter the public practice of Christian Science healing. He moved to Boston in 1956 to serve as manager of the church's Department of Branches and Practitioners.

In 1961, he was appointed as a Trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society, a position he still holds.

The new church president is a native of Bad-Salzungen, Germany, emigrating to the United States as a teen-ager. Living with relatives in Chicago, Froderman soon became interested in Christian Science and enrolled in the Sunday school. He went on to become First Reader and board chairman at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago.

The retiring president, Mrs. Helen Wood Bauman, noted the "unlimited possibilities" open to humanity through the "healing power of goodness"—the power "inherent in justice, mercy, truthfulness, and love" to overcome sin and disease.

"This is 'natural' rather than 'miraculous,'" said Mrs. Bauman, editor of the church's religious periodicals.

"Energies of goodness are God-derived. They are equal to this troubled age because they are understood as divine laws and not merely personal virtues."

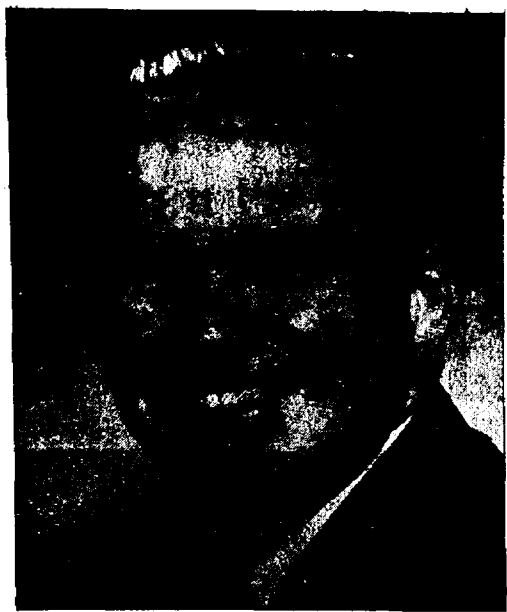

She quoted the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy: "The marvellous healing-power of goodness is the outflowing life of Christianity, and it characterized and dated the Christian era" (Miscellaneous Writings).

Closed-circuit television was used for the first time at the meeting, which annually draws an attendance of about 7,000 members, accommodated in four different auditoriums.

They heard reports from several church departments.

Establishment of a new Christian Science Society in Nigeria during the past year brought to 54 the number of countries where branches of the church are located, it was noted. New cards and folders are being published for the first time in Hungarian, as well as Afrikaans, Arabic, and Hebrew.

About 4,500 Christian Science lectures were given all over the world since last June, more than ever before in a single year, according to one report.

Reformed Synod Elects New Education Secretary

BUCK HILL FALLS — The General Synod of the Reformed Church in America elected the Rev. Christian Walvoord, of New York City, as the Executive Secretary of its Board of Education. Mr. Walvoord has served as an Associate Secretary of the Board the last year. He will succeed Dr. Bernard J. Mulder, who has served the Board of Education for 19 years.

The General Synod was told here today that "whoever expects much in the way of Christian Education in our public schools, leans upon a broken reed." The Rev. James Baar, of Wyckoff, N. J., declared this means that "if there is to be Christian instruction for the children of our churches and communities, it will have to be given in the home and in our churches."

Declaring that "the Sunday School is not of itself sufficient to carry the responsibility of the Christian education of our youth," he called upon the church "to reactivate the week-day catechetical instruction."

Robertson Will Speak On Sunday

STROUDSBURG—Don Robertson, a youth leader, will speak at two area churches Sunday.

Robertson will speak at the 9:45 and 11 a. m. services in the Bible Fellowship Church of the Poconos, I. F. C. A., Franklin Hill, East Stroudsburg, and the 7 p. m. meeting of youth fellowship in the East Stroudsburg Baptist Church.

Attending the program in the Baptist Church, in addition to the church's youth group, will be youth fellowships from the Presbyterian, Lutheran and Methodist Churches of East Stroudsburg.

A covered dish supper will be held in the Baptist Church after the Robertson Rally.

Robertson is not a newcomer to the spiritual guidance of youth. As a former Master Sergeant with the Intelligence Infantry section of Gen. D. D. Eisenhower's staff, he often spoke to combat units before and during action.

After being discharged from the U. S. Army Robertson attended Philadelphia College of the Bible and Wyckoff School of Linguistics and then joined the staff of the Pocket Testament League in the Orient.

While in the Orient Robertson helped distribute millions of Scripture portions among the Korean and American front line troops.

Robertson is known to many persons as the "human dynamo." Barely tall enough for military service, he has been a "tail man" at the side of Jack Wyrzten, founder-director of the Word of Life Fellowship, New York.

Parson To Parson

by Roderick MacLeod

Hello Son

I walked into your room and looked at you as you slept. Your sheet and blanket were twisted in a heap underneath you and as usual, your position did not seem comfortable.

I stared at you a long time, my son, and marveled at the complete look of innocence radiating from your face. In seven years the world has not had time to harden and set your expression with the strife of this world's care. I felt close to heaven as I studied every feature of your small frame in slumber.

I pray that you will never lose the innocence and trust you now have. It is up to me to try my very best to teach you that love and kindness is the most pleasant way of life and to know God is the only way of life.

I must never forget that I must be your example and that you look upon me as a much better person than I am. It is my duty to strengthen your faith in goodness by acting so as to never cause you to bow your head in shame.

Fatherhood is much more than a biological fact. It is a state of almost being godlike but most of all, a state of being responsible to The Lord God for bringing up a soul. I must show you the way that God has shown me. It is all in the Bible.

Your feet must be pointed toward God's House on Sunday and I must accompany you whenever it is at all possible. You see, son, I have need of His teaching too.

The Creator has trusted me with caring for one of His creations — you. The responsibility is awesome and in performing this duty I may be strict and stern. This does not mean that I love you any less when I have to correct you by harsh punishment like spanking every once in a while. I have read to you out of the Bible the passage "Spare the rod and spoil the child." If I did not love you, I would not bother to correct or spank. I would just let you go in the modern way of self will and uninhibited abandon.

Were I to follow modern methods of recommended child care and let you always have your own way then I would not be worthy of the love you so freely give. I would not be a real father, just a biological

I cannot help but wish that I could make all roads smooth for you and be able to solve all the problems that will confront you. If I could, I would. You know, even at your age, that I cannot.

I can only help you to understand that this life has a good side and an ugly side. I must not hide or shield you from the blows of growing up. I must guide your steps, teach you that one does not always win. I must at times, be a shoulder to cry on.

The only way that I can thank God for giving you to me is to help you know Him in truth and love. You are God's child. I have only the loan of you.

You are mine only for His keeping.

This I must always keep in mind.

"Goodnight, my son."

Problem: Cranky Tank

STROUDSBURG — Have you ever wondered why engineers get nervous ties?

Witness the plight of the construction crew at the courthouse yesterday — it had the ingredients of a Chinese puzzle.

The problem was composed of:

(1) a steel tank made of 3/4-inch steel, eight feet in diameter and 32 feet long, capable of holding 12,000 gallons.

(2) a hole in the ground along the east side of the courthouse in between two buildings, with telephone wires overhead.

(3) no way to get a crane into the area to dig the tank in the hole.

Dee Rake of the architectural firm of Rinker, Kiefer, and Rake, conferred with men from the Eastern Electric Construction Co. which is handling the installation of the huge tank.

The tank will be used to store diesel fuel to run the generator in the courthouse basement to service the emergency operating center of the Civil Defense in the event of an attack.

"Now that we've started, we have to finish," Rake said. "If we let the hole stand, it'll fill up with water and we won't be able to pour our concrete."

The tank will be put in on a slab of concrete and concrete poured around the sides. Then it will be strapped down with steel cables.

"If you don't fasten these tanks, they pop up out of the ground when they're empty like bubbles in water," Rake explained.

The engineers finally decided to push the tank around the corner of a building and drop an end into the hole. Then, from Sarah St., they'll pull it the rest of the way.

It'll be a tight fit.

The tank — which costs $1,800 from the Buffalo Tank Co. — will be pulled into its resting place tomorrow, and as far as the engineers are concerned, they probably will be happy it's buried.

Young GOP See WWS Fly Away

HARRISBURG — A delegation of Young Republicans — including the president of the Monroe County club — were at the Harrisburg Airport yesterday to wish Gov. Scranton "good hunting" when he left for Maryland to launch his presidential campaign.

Scranton thanked the group for the support shown him and asked for their continued loyalty to the Republican party both in the state and nation.

After thanking the group, Scranton said, "Now we are off to get additional support for our campaign."

Atty. Edwin Krawitz, president of the county Young Republican Club, said, "We are very pleased our governor is an announced candidate for president. It is my belief he will overcome the early Goldwater lead and his momentum will carry him to the nomination in San Francisco in July."

Krawitz said the county Young Republicans are "proud to be numbered among his staunchest supporters."

"The governor is most typical of what the Republican candidate should represent."

"Barry Goldwater being an ultra-conservative does not reflect the main stream of forward looking Republican thought the way Bill Scranton does," Krawitz said.

Scarce Teenage Jobs

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz has said that American teenagers face "the harshest employment problem since the depression of the 1930's."

Unemployment rates for teenagers are higher than any other age bracket—21 per cent for boys—while total unemployment is running at about five per cent.

The surplus of teenagers now looking for jobs and the steadily declining number of unskilled jobs available in an increasingly specialized and technical economy is creating a serious shortage of summer jobs as well as regular positions.

Teenagers looking for summer work now are having a harder time than ever before.

They should take the lesson to heart. They should heed the warning before it is too late.

They should understand that if they do not finish high school and get further training, they will find a grim economic future in our booming economy and so-called affluent society.

Election Year America Rethinking Basic Policies

(Walter Lippmann made the commencement address at Boston University on Sunday, June 7. His speech is reproduced below.)

By Walter Lippmann
I am very sensible of the privilege of speaking to you and of the honor you are doing me this afternoon.

I can most truly express my gratitude by saying that for myself, as for the Class of 1964, commencement exercises and diplomas are only punctuation marks in a process of learning which is never completed.

For there is no such thing as knowing it all, and only fools think they have nothing to learn. There is no such thing as knowing enough, and wise men are always aware of it.

In fact, the most important thing that can be gained from an education is to have begun to learn how to go about learning.

Election Year
So I need hardly tell you—since you know something about what is going on in the outer world—that this country is now engaged—especially in this election year—in the vast and complicated process of re-examining, reappraising, rethinking and relearning its beliefs about the problems of the United States in the world and about the problem of its own internal peace and progress.

I realize, of course, that all of the teachers in the educational process of an election are not so disinterested and perhaps not so well-informed as are the professors under whom you have been studying.

But you can do something to check on them by listening to their opponents.

Century of Change
There is nothing unusual about having to relearn and rethink.

It has been going on furiously throughout this century, this century of great changes, during which the United States has been transformed from a provincial and rural society into the leading industrial and military power in the world.

Indeed, though sometimes the evolution of ideas is rapid, and sometimes it is slow, we may say that the need and the ability to rethink and to relearn is the hallmark of a free society.

It is most surely the inner principle of our own American society.

The question to which the Founding Fathers of the Republic sought an answer was, as Alexander Hamilton put it, whether "societies of men are really capable of establishing good government from reflection and choice."

The commitment to establish such a government is the essence of the revolutionary turn in human affairs which created the United States.

But for that, we could go on thinking what we always thought, with never a worry that we might be wrong.

American Invention
From time immemorial, men have been governed by custom and heredity, by accident and force. The newly liberated Americans attempted to do what no scale of a nation had ever been done before.

They had to invent, contrive and learn how to operate a new kind of government—a government established and operated by reflection and choice.

This was a daring and revolutionary enterprise, and so it was held to be throughout the world.

To attempt it, the Founding Fathers had to make certain assumptions about the nature of man and about the world he lives in.

They had to assume that at least a sufficient number of Americans would be capable of reflecting correctly and then of choosing wisely.

For the Founding Fathers had no illusions about the capacities of unregenerate and uneducated men.

They did not assume that the capacity to reflect soundly would instinctively appear in every man when he became eligible to vote.

On the contrary, they realized that the incentives and restraints of well-designed political institutions were necessary to produce sound reflection.

Prefer the Good
They had to assume something more.

They had to assume that those who emerged and became the legislators and executives of the Republic would be capable of something more than reflection—that they would be inspired also with the grace to choose rightly—and that they would have the gift of preferring the good when they saw it.

These are the fundamental assumptions of the American ideology, and insofar as they are lost in our schools and in our public life, popular government, as we intend to have it, becomes extremely difficult to make work.

At the root of all these assumptions is a commitment to a continuing process of self-education and self-discipline.

It is a vast and complicated process of re-examining, reappraising, rethinking and relearning what goes into the making of public policy.

No War Scare
I was graduated from the college across the river more than 50 years ago.

I was entirely unprepared, I think I may say, for the fact that I would be living in a time of great wars and revolutions.

It never occurred to me to doubt that the tranquil world I had been born into was built on solid rock and that after man's long struggle to go onward and upward he had found the right way of permanent progress toward a better life.

When I was in school and in college, there had not been a really serious war for many generations.

The Class of 1964 has a very different experience. You, on the contrary, were born into a time when war, and the threat of war, and the preparation for war, have overhung and dominated your lives and the lives of your fathers.

Period of Peace
What I wish to say today is that now we have come to a different time.

You will—quite rightly—take what I am saying with a grain of salt and keep your fingers crossed.

But it is true, I believe, that the threat of war—the threat of great nuclear war, which could devastate the whole Northern Hemisphere—has become decidedly less than it was a few years ago, while you were still in school and college.

It is hard to believe that this is true.

Indeed, all of us have a kind of superstitious fear that we may be tempting fate if we dare to say that the danger, the greatest danger in the history of mankind, has receded.

But I think you may believe that it has receded enough so that we can begin again to plan our lives and our public affairs on the assumption that our civilization is going to survive.

This is an assumption which no one has dared to make for decades. You can make it. You can look once more beyond mere survival to the improvement of our own affairs.

I am, I must warn you, venturing onto dangerous and slippery ground. Many men who have played an honorable and leading part in the wars of this century will say that if the people are allowed to think of peace they will lose the will to prepare for war.

They will cease to make the effort, they will refuse to accept the sacrifices which are required if we are to play our part in the world.

Secure The Peace
The older generation are haunted by the memory of how, after the first and again after the second world war, the country demobilized its military power as soon as an armistice was reached and long before peace was secured.

I know I shall be warned that even if the cold war has in fact been, as I believe it has been, defused of its malignant nuclear sanction, it is a mistake to talk about preparing for peace.

And indeed, it could be a catastrophic mistake.

If the generation who are now taking over are incapable of continuing to prepare for war while they prepare for peace, then there is grave trouble ahead. I do not doubt that for some the mere talk of peace is a sedative and sleeping pill.

But I refuse to believe that we are doomed inevitably to make again every mistake we have made before. I am that much of an optimist.

I do not believe that men are incapable of learning anything from experience. They can learn something. To be sure they do not learn enough. But they do learn something.

And so, while I admit that the talk of preparing for peace may provide the selfish and the lazy with a reason for closing their eyes and folding their hands, I believe that we must speak of preparing for peace and that you especially must think of it.

We must think of it because during the past 25 years—during the long bitter years of the second world war and of the cold war—we have necessarily and unavoidably had to make heavy sacrifices.

Our material sacrifices were small as compared with those of our allies and of our enemies.

Our Internal Problem
In spite of war, the country has grown richer. But it has been too distracted by the business of waging war and of preparing against the threat of war to pay attention to its own internal problems.

That is the heaviest price that the American people have paid for war and threat of war. Partly for want of public money, but chiefly for want of time, attention and energy, we have been neglecting our own affairs.

Yet in the quarter-century since the beginning of the second world war, the American way of life has been changing dramatically and at enormous speed.

But we have been too distracted by the war to deal effectively with these changes.

Replanning Cities
Our population has been growing explosively.

We are now predominantly an industrial nation living in cities and suburban areas. But we have not kept up with the needs of this growing urbanized population.

We have hardly begun to replan and redevelop our cities and the great metropolitan areas.

Reporter's Notebook

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Autumn Coffman strode purposefully to the podium at East Stroudsburg Joint High School's commencement ceremony June 7.

She wore a black cap and gown and was only a high school senior. Her hair was blond and she looked like she could have been frightened; the huge auditorium was filled. She wasn't frightened.

Bold Speech
She started into her valedictory speech boldly; there was no quaver. Unfortunately, the first few words were lost to the audience—someone had forgotten to turn the microphone on.

Straining to hear her matters were complicated by a child who decided to scream. After high school principal Ralph Burrows reached over and snapped on the microphone, however, the audience found that Autumn was talking sense.

"Few of us will become famous," she said. Immediately this reporter conjured up a world far in the future, when these bright, promising students would be dust—forgotten like the rest of us.

"...but as a whole we will leave our impact on the world," she said.

"Another world was conjured up by that statement—a world of these student's descendants, their names carried on in the next century, as the LaBar's, Kresge's, and DePuy's are being carried on today.

Class of 1964
Autumn was right. Probably few would become famous. But what is fame? Taken as a whole, the class of 1964 of East Stroudsburg High School merged into the class of 1964 all across America.

What work will this enormous group of people do? Surely, the impact of any generation in its fast-paced time is manifold.

Her statement posed another question: Is it more important to work in a large city, or is work lessened in meaning in a small town?

In other words, is the job a man does more important than the numbers of people he reaches?

The answer was clarified in a short while. After Autumn had finished her speech, and had turned her back to the applause as she mounted the steps to her seat, the hand launched into the first movement of the New World Symphony by Anton Dvorak.

Obscure Work
Here was a man who wrote wonderful music, which he knew people would like. On the other hand, we have artists such as Bela Bartok. Bartok wrote music that he knew people wouldn't understand.

He didn't care.
Ernest Hemingway knew that his work was easy to grasp—but he wrote simply because he felt that way.

On the other hand, James Joyce wrote the greatest enigma in the history of literature: "Finnegan's Wake." He made up a new language.

But Joyce and Bartok are no less artists for their obscurity. They did what they had to do—as Dvorak and Hemingway did.

Because we are not privileged to understand Joyce does not mean that he is an imperfect artist.

The same is true with any work or craft.
Work At Best
On the stage at the high school, along with Autumn Coffman, were a hundred people who would have to come to the realization that she eventually reached at a somewhat tender age.

That conclusion is one must work honestly, truly, and at his best—and the devil take the hindmost.
It mustn't matter if people don't understand you or severely criticize you for your work.
Work anyway—but work. As Autumn said in closing, "...we are putting too much emphasis today on amusement and not enough on hard work."

Perhaps that is why few will become famous—but all those graduates can move a mountain, if they want to.

"What did you want, she asked, 'a boy or a girl?'"
"A boy," answered the father.

"Well, I'm sorry, but it's a girl this time."

"I'm not too disappointed," said the father philosophically. "A girl was my second choice."

DEAR ABBY: I am a dentist's assistant and I would like to know how often it is NECESSARY for a 26-year-old woman to have her teeth cleaned. We have this pushy young woman who would get her teeth cleaned once a week if we'd let her. I heard the dentist tell her that once every four months was about right, but she calls and claims her teeth feel "furry" and she wants them cleaned more often. The doctor has cleaned them twice in three months just to satisfy her, but she still calls wanting another appointment. I think she is trying to make a social contact with the dentist. What do you think?

DENTAL ASSISTANT
DEAR ASSISTANT: Let the dentist decide how often he wants her in his chair. If she's trying to sink her teeth into him, don't gum up the works.

DEAR ABBY: I am tired of hearing widows complain that all the men who ask them out are aggressive to the point of being insulting. I was a widow for 16 years and never had a bit of trouble. I had my first date with a gentleman on February 10th, 1961. We saw each other regularly once a week for almost two years. He called me MRS. and I called him MISTER. On New Year's Eve of 1963 I told him he could call me Margaret, and he asked me to call him Darwin. We shook hands on it. On St. Valentine's Day he asked me if he could kiss me. I said yes. Up until this time he had never laid a hand on me. We were married the following Thanksgiving. So tell those widows to act like ladies and they will be treated as such.

Mt. Pocono Woman Supports First Federal S & L Effort

Editor, The Daily Record:

Dear Ones: This is addressed to you, who have had as much inconvenience, and no success, in getting a mortgage from the local banks, to buy a home, or build a home. I for one have tried for eight years.

The First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, has loaned over four hundred persons from this community the money to buy or build, where the banks here have refused them.

They also gave them longer time to pay, with less percentage of interest.

We need good healthy banks, and now is the time to see if we can get them.

The First Federal has been trying to locate in our community, with all the pressure being exerted by our local banks, claiming a new bank is not needed as they have plenty of money, and are giving the community every service.

What do you say? Write to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, 101 Indiana, N.W., Washington 25, D.C., and a copy to Rep. Wright Patman, Washington, D.C., who is Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, and who is now investigating such banking.

I feel certain he would be glad to hear from all.

Bible School Shot-In-Arm

Editor, The Daily Record:

Churches in our community are offering all children and young people a brief ten day course in Christian Education. This Daily Vacation Bible School is an attempt to supply our growing youth with what might be called a shot-in-the-arm.

It is an attempt to make up for the rank neglect in Bible knowledge from which so many children suffer.

The success of this effort by volunteer church school teachers and others depends entirely on the response given it by parents.

The seed sown in these delightful classes is good seed but if your child is absent all the help offered will benefit him nothing.

This week in the mail I received a church bulletin from my friend in a Presbyterian Church in Iowa.

Every item on the program was according to hoyle but the closing paragraph read as follows: "No vacation Church School will be held by our congregation this summer since responses to an invitation to teach and work in such a school have proved inadequate to our needs."

This is both sad and bad. But this is not our problem in Stroudsburg (though at times we confess it almost becomes such).

While no parent should relegate to the Sunday school the sacred duty of nourishing the spiritual nature of their child, it is still true that great help can be found in that institution.

If we are really concerned about the threatened denial of our children's religious instruction in the public schools here is an opportunity to show our concern.

The Daily Vacation Bible School affords the child a total of about 22 hours of solid Christian Education.

This is the equivalent of six months regular Sunday School attendance. Enroll your children this Sunday and where possible offer your services.

Scranton's Wire To Goldwater

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton disclosed Friday he had sent a telegram to Sen. Barry Goldwater on Friday pointing out his reasons for contesting Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination.

The text: "Dear Barry: Last night I tried to telephone you. I know you realize that because of principle I have made the decision now announced. Certainly you will respect that. I think you know, too, that though I cannot agree with many of the positions you have taken, I respect you as a man."

"I will say nothing in the weeks ahead to diminish that respect. On the issues, I will be vigorous with all the power at my command. On personalities, I will be silent."

The telegram was signed "Bill Scranton."

Presbyterians Push Rights

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — The state Presbyterian Synod made several recommendations Thursday to foster civil rights for Negroes.

The synod voted to commend to the 14 presbyteries in Pennsylvania:

—That the churches deal more with builders and businessmen who demonstrate equal job opportunities for Negroes.

—That ministers be called to churches without regard to race or color.

—Make an adjustment of churches in biracial communities "to accomplish a single united witness." This means, said a spokesman, the synod recommends interracial ministers and merging of churches to accomplish greater integration.

Democrats against: None

Republicans for (5): Corbett, Fulton, Kunkel, McDade, Milliken.

Court Okays Blood for Boy

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — An eight year old boy stricken with leukemia received blood transfusions this week after a court order authorized the step despite the religious convictions of the boy's father.

Richard R. Granger, III, was showing improvement after treatment by a new technique of concentrating platelets from several pints of blood into a single transfusion.

Judge Maurice W. Spackin authorized the treatments after an appeal by two doctors.

"The boy's father, Richard Jr., had refused approval of the transfusions as a member of Jehovah's Witnesses."

Judge Condone Sneaky Police

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pennsylvania's Superior Court held this week that motorists who want to speed can't demand to know the exact location of every waiting policeman.

"Safety cannot be promoted by a system which permits a motorist, alert to warning signs and police cars, to speed with assured immunity," Judge Robert Woodside wrote in an unanimous opinion.

Project 70 Goes To Bat On Monday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
HARRISBURG (AP) — The stage is set for the winnow of the 1964 General Assembly next week, expected to be either Tuesday or Wednesday.

The House and Senate met for less than 15 minutes each Friday as they advanced several bills, including Project 70, into position for a final vote.

Then both houses adjourned until Monday.

Project 70, the $70 million land acquisition program for conservation and recreational purposes, is the last remaining item of prime importance on the assembly schedule.

It passed the Senate but was amended by the House Game and Conservation Committee before being released to the floor for action.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders have indicated that the measure has the votes to pass, despite some reported dissatisfaction on both sides of the aisle.

Trial In 3rd Day

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The trial of Mary M. McConnell, 31, of Allentown, Pa., formerly an office secretary at Local 174, Construction and General Laborers Union, today entered the third day at U.S. District Court.

Miss McConnell has been charged with embezzling $7,065 in union funds. On trial with her is James Robert, 51, of East Stroudsburg, Pa., accused of helping in the alleged embezzlement.

Thomas Gilson, assistant U.S. Attorney, called two men who served as business representatives of the union during the period of the alleged embezzlement—October, 1959 to November, 1961.

Angelo Christopher, representative until June, 1960, testified he turned over dues collections to Miss McConnell.

Just Between Us —

Both the fictionalized version of the newspaper man and their old hours make it difficult for the general public to imagine them having the same kind of home life as somebody who works from 9 to 5, say, coping with lawns and two o'clock feedings and every-day crises.

But cope they must judging by all the little people running around the lawn at the baby show for Gil Murray's wife yesterday with the editorial wives and babies out in force. Like Dagwood, I thought it made the place seem enchanted.

Heidi Peretta was bouncing away in the English pram while her cradle, which had belonged to her grandfather, was filled with gifts. Eric Cox got a good grip on Robbie Clark's hair from behind, and Patrick Murray and Stanley Schaeffer Jr. in side-by-side teeter-babes traded rattles.

The Clark girls had plenty of baby tending to do, and seemed to enjoy it all thoroughly. Anyway it was a high old time for everybody, especially me with nothing to do but watch the girls cope with one hand and help unwrap packages with the other.

By contrast, the office seemed very quiet and rather dull. Personally I think the boys lead a relatively calm life with nothing but accidents, fire, school reorganization, city planning and Rock's Island to worry about.

GOP Plea: Objective Reporting

Stroudsburg — A plea for factual, actual reporting of an event as it takes place, uncolored by the personal prejudice of the reporters, writers or newspaper people, was sent in a report on "The Responsibility of the Press" by Olaf J. Petersen to the Monroe Council of Republican Women.

The report was read by the guest speaker, Francis T. Shinn, Stroudsburg, former director and producer with the ABC Television Network. He pointed out that while 80 per cent of the newspaper publishers in the United States are Republican that 80 per cent of the reporters are Democratic.

"Newspaper publishers do not write the stories, the reporters write them. There are two ways of printing a story, one objective reporting, the other editorial. The paper may print that a small but enthusiastic group attended a meeting, or they may state that a handful of people turned out to listen. Either could be true.

"We must ask television, magazines and newspapers to lean to the basic philosophy of reporting of Joseph Pulitzer, Adolph Ochs and others."

The program followed a buffet supper held at the YMCA. Shinn gave excerpts from the Cleveland, Ohio, a resume of Dwight D. Eisenhower on "Why I Am A Republican" and a report on "The False Promise of Medicare" by Robert Cabbage.

"We are faced, as a minority party, with a task. We accept the task that we are the party of Lincoln, of Teddy Roosevelt, and of the forward-looking, responsible people of Monroe County. We are devoted to the health, welfare and individual good of every citizen, young or old in our great county," Shinn said and added:

"The Democratic Party in Washington labels an area 'depressed', which hurts the region and keeps new industry out. The government sets up federal projects which take private industry, using public funds that private industry cannot match."

After the program, the council was entertained with songs by the two small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Davis. A tribute was paid to the Davises for their work in the county and in East Stroudsburg. They are moving to California.

Mr. John Hansen, Mrs. E.H. Travis, Mrs. C. W. Dupee and Mrs. T. E. Terrill were in charge of the supper.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Bill Marlatt is a twinkly-eyed, white haired fellow who is a veritable encyclopedia of the theatre. It has been his life since he was a small boy... and that, he will tell you, was a long time ago. He admits to the number of years, but I refuse to mention them for I don't see how it could be possible that he is as old as he claims. He is far too active... too exuberant... and too eager for each tomorrow. There is something magnetic about his personality, and the minute you meet him you like him and respect his talents which are varied and impressive.

My meeting with Bill (he is one of the few people I think of by his first name after one meeting) took place several weeks ago when Estelle Koster and I visited Unity House to see the wonderful theatre in which our annual Wyckoff-Hadassah show will be staged the evening of Wednesday, June 24th. He was justifiably proud as he conducted us around the 1,000,000 building with its 1200 seats, more than 200 spot lights, and marvelous console that controls over 300 different color combinations to create almost any effect one desires. There is a 50-ft. stage, and at the side an enormous workshop where Bill can construct and paint every conceivable kind of prop needed for the shows that come to Unity—some of them with Broadway casts.

Bill was born in the mid-west, the son of a minister. This latter fact proved difficult when he decided to follow a theatrical career. His father was not entirely pleased by the idea. However, it was logical that the son would wish to be "center stage," for he had been intrigued by actors and actresses since he was a youngster, participating in amateur talent shows. And he himself had talent. Even today one notices the easy grace of his movements. He was born to dance, and was one of the renowned Denishawn Dancers at the peak of their popularity.

Not all of his work has been in the spotlight, however. When Martha Graham made her 'round the world tour for the State Department as part of its international cultural program, Bill was her manager. And for a number of years he was Mae West's electrician. His experiences have been fabulous. So are his reminiscences of the stars of yesterday with whom he worked and became friendly. He can tell you things that would cost him his head, if ever they reached print. I'm sure he could write a best seller if he decided to do so.

Right now, Bill is concentrating upon the staging of our seventh annual Wyckoff-Hadassah show. Since his are such competent hands, the rest of us are not even thinking about that phase of the show. We are looking in other directions, confident that everything at Unity House is well under control. Of course, this imposes a responsibility upon those of us who will be "out in front" when the lights go up and the curtain rises. We must all put our very best foot forward in order to appear just one tenth as professional as this one special man backstage who may not even be seen.

Bikinis As Bare As Local Stores Go--Yet

By Bobby Westhrook

Stroudsburg — We didn't think they would — and they haven't.

Nevertheless we conscientiously canvassed the women's specialty shops selling bathing suits in the Stroudsburgs with the question: "Have you ordered any of the new topsless bathing suits for women?"

The answers varied from the incredulous to the "Well, if that's what our customers want." Many of the shop owners hadn't heard of the recent stir touched off by the fact that certain stores are ordering for now what was meant to be a five-year-from-now forecast of fashions.

"But what hides the front?", asked one proprietor. Burrows haven't ordered any, but if one should come in by mistake, promised to feature it in the window to satisfy just such curiosity. Zacher, in New York on a buying trip, couldn't be reached directly but having heard his critical comments when the news broke in the fashion press, the clerks were sure he wouldn't come home with one.

Will They Sell? Herb's His 'n Her Shop haven't ordered them either, but added a tongue-in-cheek "We'll wait and see how they sell". From the Jay-Al Shop and Towne and Country came just a flat "No".

And Wyckoff's just said they weren't handling special orders for bathing suits.

The Woman's Shop was aware of the furor but forecast that the fashion wouldn't catch on in Stroudsburg for "at least 8 to 10 years".

Rudi Geinreich, whose obit dresses, dead white clown make-up, and wild-west type satin evening costumes were featured in The Daily Record's fashion show coverage last year, is the guy who touched off the current craze. Even he didn't think the fashion would sell. From the Jay-Al Shop and Towne and Country came just a flat "No".

PATIO SALAD is a perfect go-together for an outside barbecue with onions, green peppers and lima beans.

Sophisticated Recipes For Primitive Outdoor Cooking

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — Unusual cookbooks fascinate me. Bobbie Westbrook loaned me the Yugoslavian cookbook she brought back from her trip and it's as fascinating as a novel. And such names of recipes! How would you like to cook "Pigs and Calves' Feet Jelly", Red Mullet in Waxed Paper" or Kohlrabi Stuffed with Brains" for supper tonight? There are some recipes, though, that sound more appetizing, so I'll copy off a few and if I have any luck with them, I'll let you know.

In the Sunday Times Book Review Section, there was a column about a new cookbook by Euell Gibbons. Two years ago he wrote a book called "Stalking the Wild Asparagus" which is about edible wild food. The columnist noted that he should be the envy of every summer gardener for he gets rid of his weeds by eating them!

Maybe we're completing the evolution circle of eating, for we're not only back to gathering weeds, we're cooking outside. Admittedly, throwing a match on charcoal is a lot easier than the caveman's way of collecting wood and building a fire, plus the fact that he did it to survive, we do it for fun.

In the photo, those hot dogs aren't hot dogs, they're the new cheese flavored smoked sausages. Pre-cooked, they need only a few minutes' sizzling over hot charcoal and can be eaten in buns. The salad is a perfect go-together for an outside barbecue.

Patio Salad
Cook and cool two 10 ounce packages of frozen baby lima beans. Mix with:
1/2 cup sliced onions
1/2 cup green pepper strips
Mix together and add to vegetables:

1/2 pint sour cream
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon horseradish
1 teaspoon sugar
Refrigerate until serving time. Serves 6.

Have you ever tried fish over charcoal? For those of you looking for something different for outside cooking, try this:

Charcoal Grilled Bass
Select a large fish, such as a sea bass, weighing four to five pounds if you plan on six servings. Remove the head when the fish is cleaned. Brush the surface of the fish with a special herb bouquet, if desired. Place the fish on a large double sheet of heavy duty aluminum foil, and pull the foil up around it.

Prepare this sauce by heating together:
Mushroom Barbecue Sauce
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon liquid coloring for gravy

3/4 cup ketchup
3/4 cup water
1/4 cup finely diced onion
1 garlic clove, minced
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
2 drops Tabasco
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon chili powder
1 can (6 oz.) broiled in butter sliced mushrooms

Pour this heated sauce over the fish. Then quickly fold the foil securely over the fish so that the sauce cannot escape. Place the package on the grill three or four inches above the hot coals. Allow it to cook for 25 to 30 minutes. Then open the foil and test the fish with a fork. If it flakes easily it is done.

Serve the fish with buttered rice and grilled tomatoes. It's a hearty meal — and a mighty tasty one.
For the Barbecue Chef who really wants to show off, this is The Recipe. He'll seem the gourmet cook when he brings flaming chicken to the table, and it'll be his secret that's it's easy as pie to do:

Flaming Chicken and Princess Potatoes
Place two 2 pound whole chickens on rotisserie spit, tie and secure. Brush with melted butter. Put Princess Potatoes (recipe below) in foil-lined broiler pan or a foil pan. Potatoes cook and brown while chicken is rotissing. Rotiss chickens over charcoal or in a 400 oven if you're barbecuing in the kitchen, for 1 to 1 1/2 hours, or until tender. Remove chickens from spit to platter.

Flaming Sauce for Chicken
1/2 cup apricot preserves
1/2 cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons lemon extract
Mix preserves and corn syrup over low heat. Spoon over chicken. Pour extract over preserves and ignite. Let extract burn off, then cut chicken in serving pieces. Serve immediately with potatoes from pan.

Princess Potatoes
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped parsley
6 cups grated raw potatoes or 4 packages frozen grated potato patties, thawed)
1 cup chopped celery
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Melt butter; add onion and parsley. Cook for 5 to 8 minutes until onion is transparent. Remove from unit. Add grated potato, celery, salt and paprika. Mix well and spread evenly in broiler pan. Cook over charcoal as the chicken is rotissing. Serves 8 to 10.

Cubs Clout Bucs

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Amalfitano belted the first grand slam homer of his career in a unique six-run sixth inning which swept the Chicago Cubs to a 7-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday.

The Cubs got only two hits in the big inning in which Pittsburgh's Bob Veale, allowing only a first-inning scratch single over five innings, blew completely apart.

Veale started the sixth by moving down his 14th straight Cub on his eighth strikeout. But he gave Bob Buhl his first walk and then walked Jimmy Stewart.

Lou Brock filed for the second out, moving Buhl to third. League-leading hitter Billy Williams singled Buhl across and Stewart to second.

A walk to Ron Santo filled the bases. With Ernie Banks at bat, Veale uncorked a wild pitch, scoring Stewart.

That brought in Roy Face, who intentionally walked Banks, again filling the bases.

All Summer Baseball To Develop Players?

OMAHA (AP)—Tom Greenwood, veteran New York Yankees scout who signed such players as Mickey Mantle, Elston Howard and Hank Bauer, has some solutions to baseball's player development problems that might surprise you.

For instance, many coaches and officials in college and pro ranks foresee a big expansion of summer leagues using college players and financed in part by the major leagues.

But Greenwood, here for the College World Series, has these views:

1. "The colleges should continue their regular seasons through the summer, with the boys going to summer school. I think the majors should put more money into this than the summer leagues."

2. "We have enough leagues now in baseball for the top prospects we sign. The problem is finding a place to play for the fringe players, who might develop into major league prospects in a few years. We'd like to be able to hold onto these boys a little longer."

3. "Some boys want a degree but don't want to risk their hopes of a pro baseball career by playing college athletics, particularly football. These boys often decide to sign pro after high school and take a major league college scholarship valued at $8,000. I think it's best in some cases."

The player is entitled to $1,000 a year for eight years but can't touch the money unless he enters college. The scholarship continues if he is traded, while the original club footing the bill, submitted by the college dean to the commissioner of baseball.

Lopez Predicts Four-Team Race

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Al Lopez has been saying for years that the Yankees can be beaten. It sounds great in the winter and spring but each October the Senator has to scurry around to get World Series tickets for his friends at Yankee Stadium.

This may be the year. At least Lopez can point to the American League standings to back up his prediction.

"I said in the spring that three clubs—Baltimore, Minnesota and Chicago—had a chance to beat the Yankees," said the Chicago White Sox manager. "Going Good"

"We have been going good and we are going to get better. "Pete Ward is hitting a little over .250. Ron Hansen started strong and was our No. 4 hitter but he has been slumping. Floyd Robinson is starting to hit. Tommy McCraw has been doing good. Joe Cunningham has a bad leg. Dave Nicholson has been pretty steady, cutting down a little bit on the strikeouts but not enough."

"I said Baltimore could be up there if they got lucky with their pitching. Well, they came up with that kid, Wally Bunker, and Dave McNally. And they've got a good bullpen."

Good Hitting

"Minnesota has as much or more hitting than anybody in baseball but they have to get lucky with their pitching. They might be just a little bit short. "Pitching won for the Yankees last year, not their bench. If they don't get the pitching straightened out they'll be in real trouble."

The White Sox and Yankees will play nine of their 18-game season series between Friday and Sunday, June 21. After the Friday doubleheader, they have a single day game Saturday and a Sunday doubleheader at the Stadium. Next Friday night they play in Chicago with a day game following on Saturday and another Sunday doubleheader.

Develop Talents

He explained summer-long college baseball would enable boys to develop their talents as amateurs while under the watchful eyes of pro scouts.

3. "Some boys want a degree but don't want to risk their hopes of a pro baseball career by playing college athletics, particularly football. These boys often decide to sign pro after high school and take a major league college scholarship valued at $8,000. I think it's best in some cases."

Sweeny Ousted In Golf

GAINTON, England (AP)—Michael Lunt, the defending champion, and Gordon Clark, a little-known English golfer, won their way into the finals of the British Amateur Golf Championship Friday after the last American challenger, Bob Sweeny, bowed out in the quarter-finals.

The 52-year-old, Oxford-educated Sweeny, last of 31 Americans in the tournament, yielded to Martin Christmas, a British Walker Cup player, 6 and 5, in their morning match.

Clark, who has represented England in international matches but never has figured in a major championship, then eliminated Christmas 2 up.

Lunt won his big one in the quarter-finals, playing sub-par golf to beat Joe Carr of Ireland, three-time winner of the British Amateur, on the 19th hole. He then gained a comparatively semifinal victory over John Hall of England, 4 and 3.

Clark had eliminated Dale Morey, considered the strongest American threat, in the fifth round Thursday. He beat Derek Harrison of Scotland 1 up in Friday's quarter-finals.

When Lunt and Clark meet in the 36-hole final Saturday over the 6,821-yard, par 36-35—71 Ganton course, it will mark the first time in more than three decades that this ancient tournament has had two all-British finals in succession.

Saturday, Miss Richey plays Mrs. Jones, a dogged left-hander who is a veteran member of the British team, and Miss Moffitt takes on the steady Miss Call.

And her singles match involves Miss Caldwell and Elizabeth Starkie, the British captain.

The United States can clinch the trophy for the fourth straight year by winning two of the final four matches Saturday which include three singles and one doubles.

Miss Richey, 21-year-old daughter of a Texas Tennis pro, started the United States off on the right foot by beating Deldre Call 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 in a two-hour baseline duel on Wimbledon's center court.

Then Miss Moffitt, America's No. 1 player, made it 2-0 by whipping Britain's top woman ace, Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, 4-6, 5-2, 6-3.

U. S. Women Take Lead Over Britain

By GEOFFREY MILLER
WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., rallied after losing opening sets for singles victories which gave U. S. women tennis players a 2-1 lead over Britain Friday in the Wimbledon Cup competition.

Miss Moffitt and her partner, Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., folded in the final set of the doubles which Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones and Deldre Call won 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 for the line British point.

Yanks Sweep Chisox

NEW YORK (AP)—Masterful Whitey Ford won his eighth straight game with a four-hitter as the New York Yankees blanked the American League-leading Chicago White Sox 3-0 and completed a sweep of their two-night doubleheader Friday.

The Yankees won the opener 6-1.

The double victory gave the third-place Yankees a four-game winning streak and moved them three games back of the White Sox, who hadn't previously lost a doubleheader this season.

Fifth Shutout

Ford, who hasn't lost since opening day, didn't let a runner reach third. He walked two and struck out five in gaining his fifth shutout.

Joel Horlen allowed the Yankees only one hit until the sixth when they scored all of their runs. Phil Linz doubled and came home on Tony Kubek's home run into the right field stands.

Bobby Richardson, who got the 1,000th hit of his 10-year major league career in the opener, then reached first on Hansen's bobbie and scored on Mickey Mantle's double to left.

Wins Fourth

Steve Hamilton, making his first start as a Yankee, won his fourth game without a defeat in the opener, scattering nine hits.

Griffith Wins Split Decision

By BOB MYERS
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Emile Griffith retained his world welterweight championship Friday night over Luis Rodriguez in 15 furious rounds.

Again it was a split decision between the two long-time rivals.

As tension mounted and the action matched the pace, the 25-year-old Griffith from New York held off the challenge by Rodriguez.

Griffith weighed 146 pounds. The 26-year-old Rodriguez, a refugee from Cuba now living in Miami, weighed 146½.

Griffith, who lost and regained the title from Rodriguez in two fights last year in New York, leaped high in the air in joy when the decision was announced. Gloom settled over the corner of his rival.

The votes:

Referee Harry Krause—who was almost as busy as the fighters separating them in their torrid in-fighting—scored it 69-67 for Griffith.

Judge John Romero had it 70-68 for

2-Year Travel Boom Foreseen In State

POCONO MANOR — The executive vice president of the American Automobile Association told AAA-Pennsylvania Motor Federation delegates yesterday they could add more than half a billion dollars to their travel income during the two years of the New York World's Fair.

The AAA executive, Russell E. Singer, warned, however, that the state's travel interests would need to exert intense promotional efforts to achieve that lofty goal. In an address to a meeting of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, he declared: "We at Three-A estimate that 10 million persons will pass through Pennsylvania by automobile on their way to and from the Fair this year and next, for a total of 20 million cross-state trips by individuals.

"If you can convince them to spend as much time in Pennsylvania as the average motor traveler spent in other parts of Washington State during the Seattle Fair, you could gain as much as $350 million in additional travel income this summer and $275 million next summer."

Four Days Touring
Singer noted that an AAA survey, following the Seattle World's Fair in 1962 showed that the average motorist spent four days touring other areas nearby, in addition to his time spent at the Fair itself. The AAA official pointed out that with the recent closing of school for summer vacation, the surge in travel across Pennsylvania will soon be coming.

was $1.8 billion, Singer said the extra income possible from World's Fair visitors this year could boost that figure close to the $2 billion mark.

"But you will need to work hard to induce those cross-state travelers to spend a few days visiting the many excellent travel attractions in Pennsylvania," he added. "You are facing keen competition from other Eastern areas seeking to reap the side benefits of the Fair."

He commended state tourist interests for the recent spectacular 52-page advertisement inserted in the Saturday Evening Post, the largest magazine advertisement ever put together, calling attention to Pennsylvania's tourist attractions.

"This is the type of imaginative promotion that will pay off in dollars and cents," he said.

Singer, who has just returned from an around-the-world trip, noted that competition for the American travel dollar has spread throughout the globe. He was particularly impressed, he said, at the increasing American interest in visits to the Orient.

"This may be one explanation for the heavy increase in requests for routings to Western states on the part of AAA members," he added. "Apparently many are combining motor trips west with air and sea journeys to Hawaii and beyond."

Pennsylvanians also face the additional challenge of sparking interest among those travelers who have no intention of visiting the World's Fair, Mr. Singer said. He recounted results of a survey among AAA clubs earlier this year, which showed that interest in vacation spots apart from the World's Fair was on the increase.

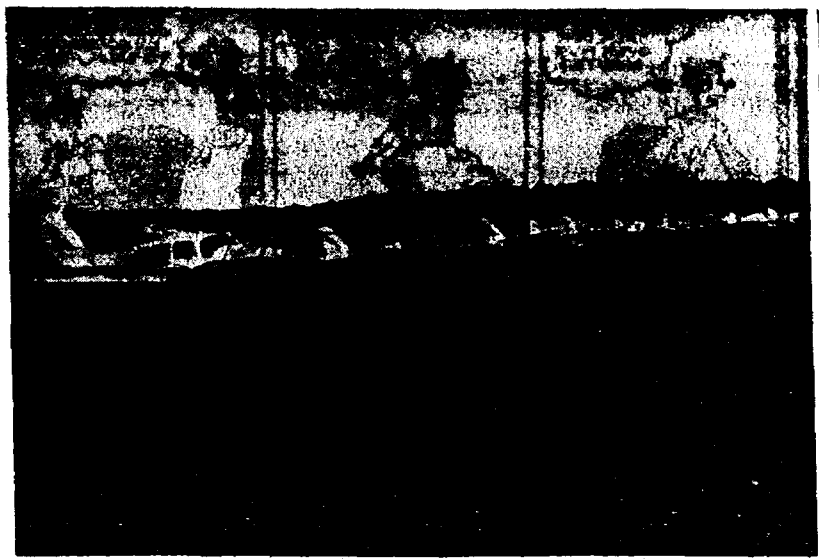

"Interest in Pennsylvania," he said, "is reflected in the fact that distribution of AAA's Pennsylvania-New Jersey map is up 17 per cent above last year's distribution."

concluded, "that the travel industry in the rest of the country is not going to suffer because of the World's Fair, which in itself is a great travel attraction of 1964. Indeed, much of the rest of the country should benefit from the Fair, and Pennsylvania should get a large share of this 'outside' travel."

Radiation Science Course Set

EAST STROUDSBURG — Advanced Radiation Science, a graduate course, will be offered by the science department of the Graduate School at East Stroudsburg State College during the present summer.

Scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., June 29 through August 7, the course was designed for high school science teachers, Civil Defense personnel and persons interested in the radiation science field. A practical understanding of nuclear radiation for contemporary experimentation and instruction are the major objectives of the course.

As the direct result of a laboratory facilities grant from the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, all necessary laboratory equipment is available to the students taking the course.

Another course of interest to science teachers is Scientific Photography. It will be offered during the post-session beginning August 10 and ending on August 28.

A graduate course in science, it will afford students the opportunity to learn methods and procedures of photography in science. Slides, still photographs, development procedures and motion pictures will be portions of the course.

Additional information about these specialized summer courses in the graduate division of the science department can be obtained from the Graduate School at East Stroudsburg State College.

Aircraft Firm Meets In Poconos

MT. POCONO — About 50 dealers and distributors of the Piper Aircraft Corp. of Lock Haven flew into Mt. Pocono Wednesday for a two-day conference at High Point Inn.

The dealers flew their planes—Pipers, of course—into the Pocono Mountains Airport.

The meeting was the Northeast Regional Dealers' and Distributors' meeting. It began Wednesday night with a cocktail party and a dinner.

Thursday morning a formal business meeting was held. At the meeting, the dealers were told that Piper was giving $1,000,000 in national advertising backing to its new lines of planes.

It was mentioned that this year is far ahead of last year in sales, and is the biggest year in the company's history so far. The dealers and distributors flew off yesterday about 2 p. m.

Record Enrollment At ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG — The largest pre-session enrollment in the history of summer sessions has taken place at East Stroudsburg State College, according to figures released by college officials.

Approximately 640 students have entered classes presently being offered during the three-week pre-session. ESSC offers a summer program consisting of three sessions — a pre-session of three weeks; a main-session of 6 weeks; and a post-session of 3 weeks in August.

The college president, Dr. Leroy J. Koehler, stated that the present enrollment is the largest of any previous summer pre-session in the history of the college.

Dr. Francis McGarry, Dean of Instruction, concurred with the president and added that the enrollment for the main-session of 6 weeks, beginning June 29, will probably be greater although an accurate account must wait until registration for the session is completed.

George "Doc" Abraham's popular column, "The Green Thumb" will now be published in this section every Saturday morning.

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

EVERGREENS: Few things are more disheartening than to spend money for evergreens and then find them growing into a jungle within a couple of years. Evergreens may be "dwarf" or "low growing" but that doesn't mean they don't need pruning or shearing. For best results, all evergreens should be sheared or trimmed. This keeps the plants vigorous by stimulating new growth. And it also helps the plants retain their natural shape and compactness. This helps them hold a load of snow better in winter.

One reason why gardeners neglect evergreens is that they're bogged down by too many do's and don'ts. Actually it's a simple matter to keep evergreens shapely. Let's start out with the Yews or Taxus, queen of the evergreens. First, forget the jawbreaking Latin names (it's important to have them for identification) like brevifolia and cuspidata nana and capitata. The important thing is find out what habit of growth these plants naturally make. For sake of simplicity, Taxus or Yews come in two shapes: Upright (columnar) and spreading. Both are ideal in the home landscape, both respond to shearing.

In a nutshell, here's how you keep these evergreens in shape. First, buy a pair of hedge shears and get ready for some barbering. If the Yew is an upright (ask your nurseryman if you aren't sure) shear it in short strokes going all the way around the plant. Don't take out big chunks at once.

For spreading types you can keep them sheared in a round ball, or you can "pluck" them if you like the informal effect. By plucking, you simply reach in here and there, snipping out extra long branches. When you've finished, you have a zig-zag effect from a bird's eye view point. Don't try to make an upright into a spreader, don't attempt to make a spreader into an upright. They grow naturally tall or spreading and you can buy them that way. Next week: More on evergreens. How to make these plants enhance your home.

JERUSALEM CHERRY: Is yours tall and unshapely? Cut it back so it has a nice shape, plant it outdoors (pot and all) chopped it fine and poured boiling water on it. Let stand for an hour or more, and when cool 1 pour this garlic solution on my plants and on the ground. It keeps the pests away for 4 to 6 weeks. For evergreens, I keep dogs away by dusting some cayenne pepper around the base and on the ground. Replace it if it rains washes it away."

S. M. of Stroudsburg: "I bought a wisteria and a Golden Chain tree in April. It was planted the same day purchased. So far nothing has leaved out. Is it safe to say these are dead and should be replaced by the nursery?"

No. Sometimes it takes up to 6 months or even more for some items to break dormancy and show buds. I'd wait a couple months more. In the meantime, give these the "fingernail" test. Scrape back a little bark to see if there is any green tissue beneath. Also, be sure to cut the tops back to stimulate the plants and hasten the breaking of the dormant stage.

V. B. M. of Reeders: "I see that some of your readers are bothered with rabbits, squirrels and moles. I have a large garden and these animals used to bother my plants, but no more. I took some garlic, chopped it fine and poured boiling water on it. Let stand for an hour or more, and when cool 1 pour this garlic solution on my plants and on the ground. It keeps the pests away for 4 to 6 weeks. For evergreens, I keep dogs away by dusting some cayenne pepper around the base and on the ground. Replace it if it rains washes it away."

for the summer. Keep it watered and fed and you'll find it will produce seeds of blooms and berries next fall. If you saved any of the fruit, why not start new plants for your friends? Take the seed and plant in a pot of sand and peat moss. Seeds grow fast and will make nice plants by fall. Give them a liquid feeding every three or four weeks and you'll have big, husky plants.

The ornamental pepper is hardly worth saving and you might better start new plants from seed. This flashy item makes an ideal Christmas gift so start some now for Christmas giving.

BLUE POTATOES: Recently, someone asked me about blue potatoes. Not knowing much about them, I put in a call to readers for help and am grateful for the flood of mail which came in. Here are some comments: "Variety is known as Blue Victor, an early potato, smooth skinned with shallow eyes, very white flesh under the blue skin. Yielded well, excellent quality, but were unsalable because of their blue color. Superior to other early varieties such as the Irish Cobbler and the Red types."

Another writes: "Planted 11 Blue Victors and got 2 bushels. Blight resistant, need no spraying. Need to be cut in 3 or 4 pieces. Also called Centennial Blue."

A gardener writes: "We grew them 30 years ago and have since lost track of them. They are wonderful, even if the skins are dark blue. When cooked they are snow white. It's strange they went out of existence for they surely were good."

A commercial grower: "Blue Victors were of excellent flavor but a poor one to grow commercially . . . only two or three produced a 'hill'."

A life-long gardener: "Have raised them 35 years and wouldn't grow anything else. Excellent keeper, last until June without sprouting. I can spare a few if anyone wants them. They better hurry as the potatoes can't be held much longer."

ROSE SPRAY: I've been asked to repeat instructions for making a home-made rose spray. You can buy good all purpose pesticides on the market, but if you want to make your own, here's the formula: No. 1 — Ferbam or Captain, 3 level lbs.; wettable sulfur, 2 level lbs.; DDT, 50 per cent powder (or Malathion), 3 level lbs. These are mixed in a gallon of water to which has been added a level teaspoon of a liquid detergent.

Formula No. 2: 1 lbs. of Dithane (or 2 lbs. of Parzale); 3 lbs. of Karathane; 2 lbs. of wettable 50 per cent DDT (or 3 lbs. of 50 per cent methoxychlor); and 2 lbs. of 25 per cent malathion to a gallon of water. Dust or spray every week. If neither formula works against blackspot (the most serious disease of roses) try using Maneb or Zineb, 1 oz. to 4 gallons of water. Or you can add some Phallan to the mixture.

PINE NEEDLE MULCH: These make a fine mulch for summer or winter. As a summer mulch, they have no weed seed problem, do a fine job conserving moisture and choking out weeds. Only objection to needles is that they present a fire hazard in dry weather. Sometimes mice tend to work under them, especially in winter. Ideal around evergreens, roses or even in the strawberry patch.

HOUSE PLANTS: Is there any way you can keep house plants watered automatically while you are on a short vacation? One trick is to place several thickneses of newspapers on the bottom of a bathtub, then run in about an inch of water. The pots are placed on the paper and plants are watered automatically.

Another trick is to water the plants well, then enclose them with a plastic tent. This prevents water loss and plants will keep well under the plastic greenhouse.

BLEEDING TREES: Does your shade tree have a broad, wet streak running down the trunk, especially near a split or a branch crotch? This bleeding condition is known as wetwood disease, a bacterial infection of the heartwood and sapwood. The bacteria produce gas pressure which forces a liquid out through wounds in the trunk.

This fluid is toxic and is unsightly on the trunk, when it dries to a gray-white color. The cure: None is positive. Bore a hole in the trunk below the seeping wound and install a short drain pipe from which the gas and watery sap may escape. This drain relieves the pressure within the tree by allowing it to "burp".

Unique New Rose Grows In A Variety Of Ways

The first "three-dimensional" sized clustered flowers range from a vibrant cardinal-red to marigold-orange and finish up as a brilliant currant-red via stages of ever-changing tones of lemon-yellow, crimson and apricot.

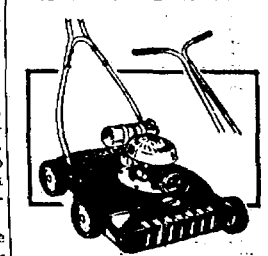

The fast-growing, extravagantly multi-colored new rose, named Joseph's Coat, could well be termed "a new kind of rose," since it represents a major new advance in scientific plant breeding.

Joseph's Coat, originated by Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario, Calif., unlocks a whole new planting concept for the home gardener in providing for the first time a single everblooming rose that can successfully fill any one of a wide variety of fundamental planting roles in the home landscape.

Until the introduction of Joseph's Coat, there has never been a single rose that offered home gardeners a choice of so many functional uses, any one of which could satisfy the three primary dimensions of rose growing—height, width, depth. This is an unbelievably colorful new rose whose medium-

Eastburg Authority Given Okay To Float Bond Issue

EAST STROUDSBURG — The joint school committee of East Stroudsburg Area District has authorized the district's joint building authority to float a $337,000 bond issue to finance renovating an elementary school and re-seeding the high school athletic area.

The renovation project at the old N. Courtland St. school will cost $295,000 and the athletic area, $42,000.

The approval was granted at a meeting Thursday night in the junior-senior high school after three hours of heated debate centering around Price Township's refusal to go along with the project.

Price's fight was led by school directors David Hutchinson and Robert Mosier and for a time by Paul Nauman, who is also president of the joint committee.

Held Up Proceedings
During the first poll of the six school boards making up the joint district, Price refused to approve the project and under the joint articles of agreement held up the entire project.

The other five boards took the stand the school was needed to alleviate overcrowded student conditions and delay would push the construction price higher.

Dr. Evan Reese, joint committee member from East Stroudsburg Borough, cautioned Price that the district was already committed to $12,000 in architect fees for the project.

"If we let this building go another year we may as well tear it down. We have an estimate of $375,000 for building a new 10-room, one story school that would not have enough space.

"If we don't complete this project it will cost us $110,000 more to get the job done," Dr. Reese stated.

Carl Secor, supervising principal, confirmed the students are attending school in crowded conditions.

"We are simply going to need more room. Someday the college might decide to close its laboratory school and we would have those students to house.

"We are using basement rooms for classrooms now and this is against state regulations. Smithfield Township is growing rapidly and this building could delay building a new school there for some time," Secor told the committee.

The Price directors contended that costs in the joint district are continuing to spiral and are driving the township into bankruptcy.

They argued Price's only salvation was advance establishment of a new school district under state mandated school reorganization.

Sought Firm Commitment
Price asked for a firm commitment from the other five districts that they are in favor of creating a new school district July 1, 1965 — one year before the mandated date.

Two districts in the jointure — East Stroudsburg Borough and Porter Township — have filed appeals to the county school board's plan to reorganize the county's three joint district into three merged administrative units.

Under the plan Stroud Union would remain under its present setup.

All East Stroudsburg districts — with the exception of Porter — agreed to push for advancement establishment.

Alex Bensinger, solicitor to the joint committee and East Stroudsburg Borough, said he thought all appeals would have to be withdrawn to enable the district to reorganize by July, 1965.

GUARDING YOUR LIFE — Harry H. Brainerd (left), director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Traffic Safety, and Col. E. Wilson Purdy, state police commissioner, demonstrate to AAA Pennsylvania Motor Federation delegates at Pocono Manor the new lettering which will appear July 1 on 1,000 state-owned vehicles which will report reckless driving incidents but have no power to arrest.

College Frat House Promises To Use Off-Street Parking

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity at East Stroudsburg State College has promised to use its off-street parking to relieve congestion on Ransberry Ave. and to conform with the requirements of residential district.

The fraternity has appealed a decision of the East Stroudsburg Planning Commission claiming the fraternity house does not conform to a residential district under the provisions of the borough's zoning ordinance.

Eugene Martin, a zoning board member, told representatives of the Sigma Kappa much of the borough's objection would be eased if the students at the fraternity house would park in its parking lot.

Philip Wellington of Stroudsburg, alumnus president of the fraternity, assured the zoning board he would see that the members use off-street parking and the fraternity would make any other changes the zoning board required.

Charles Reid, zoning board chairman, said the only other infraction to the zoning regulation is a sign in the fraternity's front yard.

The zoning ordinance required a sign in a residential area indicating occupancy to be attached to the residence and no more than one square foot in size.

At a meeting held Thursday night in the borough building, Carl Jones, zoning enforcement officer, questioned reports the fraternity brothers are throwing wild beer drinking parties. Jones said the reports were rumors and he had heard of no specific instance of such behavior.

Without Foundation
Robert Layton, advisor to the fraternity, said the charges were without foundation.

"Two of our charter members resigned because the times were too dull. The fraternity's reputation among college students is that Sigma Kappa is one of the more conservative fraternities at the college," Layton said.

The zoning board took the appeal under advisement and indicated a solution would be found.

The fraternity contends if it is required to move it will lose money because the house was remodeled to accommodate 24 members at a cost of more than $8,000. The fraternity placed a down payment on the house on Feb. 28, 1963, just 23 days after the zoning ordinance was passed by borough council.

Fireworks Warning Issued

JIM THORPE — Francis A. Hartnett, executive director of the Carbon Monroe Association for the Blind said yesterday, "The efforts of the association to prevent eye injury from fireworks are made doubly difficult by residents who bring in fireworks from other states which allow their sale, or by firms from outside of Pennsylvania who mail fireworks into the state.

"Both of these practices are illegal, but they are difficult to control."

The association, a private non-profit agency is concerned with eye safety of all children and requests parents and law enforcement officers to be on the alert for illegal traffic in fireworks. Laxity on the part of officials and parents can result in a lifetime of tragedy for victims of accidents from these supposedly harmless "toys," which can injure or cause a visual handicap.

Illegal sale of fireworks can result in punishment by fine, imprisonment, or both. Hartnett offers these suggestions to parents to help protect their own families and possibly prevent loss of sight from fireworks:

1. Don't permit your child to purchase fireworks from fraudulent dealers or through the mail.
2. If your child obtains fireworks, determine the source of purchase and notify local authorities.
3. Assist authorities to locate those who deal in illegal fireworks sales.

What a shot! Photographers love to find a scene like this. Flowing water . . . a background of trees . . . a church spire in the distance . . . these always make an outstanding picture.

Wherever we travel we see Christian churches in harmonious settings, and there's a tendency to think of them as "part of the scenery."

But what an important part they are! Every one is a House of God, dedicated to His service. Every one is a community focal point, helping in a thousand ways to broaden and beautify the lives of its members. And every one is a vital link in the shining chain of Christian belief that stretches around the world.

Not far from where you live, there's a church that could give your life a new dimension. Whatever doubts and fears you may have, bring them to God in His House. You can rely on His promise that He will not leave you comfortless.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
